5 THINGS TO KNOW

WELCOME TO METRO PHILLY

JOVAN ALFORD, SPORTS EDITOR

The 2018 NBA Draft is officially in the books. The Philadelphia 76ers had three selections in last week's draft. As expected the team drafted former Villanova star Mikal Bridges at No. 10 overall but traded him minutes later to the Phoenix Suns for the rights of Zhaire Smith, who was selected with the No. 16 pick. Was this a smart move by head coach Brett Brown? Did the Sixers improve their roster as they get ready for an important free agency? For more on the Sixers' draft picks, please see page 24 and metro.us.

TURKEY'S ERDOGAN CLAIMS ELECTION VICTORY

1 Tayyip Erdogan and his ruling AK Party claimed victory in Turkey's presidential and parliamentary polls on Sunday, overcoming the biggest electoral challenge to their rule in more than a decade. However, the main opposition party said it was too early to concede defeat and said it believed Erdogan could still fall short of the 50 percent needed to avoid a presidential runoff on July 8. "Our people have given us the job of carrying out the presidential and executive posts," Erdogan said in a short national address even as votes were still being counted. "I hope nobody will try to cast a shadow on the results and harm democracy in order to hide their own failure." Erdogan, 64, the most popular but also the most divisive politician in modern Turkish history, later waved to cheering, flag-waving supporters from the top of a bus in Istanbul. Sunday's vote ushers in a powerful new executive presidency long sought by Erdogan and backed by a small majority of Turks in a 2017 referendum. Critics say it will further erode democracy in the NATO member state and entrench one-man rule.

NIGERIA IMPOSES CURFEW AS 70 DIE IN CLASHES

2 Nigeria imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew on Sunday in central Plateau state after some 70 people died in communal clashes between farmers and semi-nomadic herders over the weekend. Strife in the decades-old conflict has escalated sharply this year, particularly in the ethnically and religiously diverse hinterland states known as the Middle Belt, causing more deaths than the Boko Haram insurgency in Nigeria's northeast. "The government has enforced a curfew from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. in order to bring normalcy, [and] police and other security operatives have been put on alert at the moment," Plateau State's Commissioner of Information Yakubu Dati told Reuters. Communal violence between herders and farmers, which originated partly over dwindling fertile land, has spiraled into a cycle of violence and reprisal attacks that has killed hundreds of people this year in the Middle Belt. Insecurity has become a major electoral problem for President Muhammadu Buhari, who plans to seek re-election in February and who won power on pledges to deliver peace and stability.

WOMEN BEGIN DRIVING IN SAUDI ARABIA

3 Fadya Fahad, 23, one of the first female drivers for Careem, a peer-to-peer ride-sharing company similar to Uber, drives a car she has rented on the first day she was legally allowed to drive in Saudi Arabia on Sunday in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Fadya lived in the United States, where she got her first license. "It's so amazing," she said. When asked what her parents thought about it, she said: "They are so proud. My father said I drive better than my brother." On Sunday, Saudi Arabia lifted its ban on women drivers, which had been in place since 1957. The Saudi government, under Crown Prince Mohammad Bin Salman, is phasing in an ongoing series of reforms to both diversify the Saudi economy and to liberalize its society. The reforms also seek to empower women by restoring their basic legal rights, allowing them increasing independence and encouraging their participation in the workforce. Saudi Arabia is among the most conservative countries in the world and women have traditionally had much fewer rights than men.

28 MEXICAN POLICE HELD OVER POLITICAL MURDER

4 Twenty-eight police officers in the western Mexican state of Michoacan have been arrested on suspicion of involvement in the murder of a candidate for mayor in the municipality of Ocampo, local media reported on Sunday. State authorities issued a statement on Sunday stating that all members of Ocampo's municipal police department had been taken in for questioning by the police's internal affairs department. The probe focused on potential violations of the police code of conduct, the statement said, without giving anymore details. Local and national media said the officers were held on suspicion of complicity in the killing of Fernando Angeles Juarez, who was running for mayor of Ocampo, which lies on the eastern fringe of Michoacan and is home to some 24,000 people. Juarez was shot dead on Thursday while competing for the center-left Party of the Democratic Revolution (PRD), which governs the long-troubled state. A source familiar with the investigation said that the media reports about the arrests were correct.

PREZ: 'NO JUDGES OR COURT CASES' ON DEPORTATION

5 President Donald Trump said on Sunday that people who enter the United States illegally should be returned immediately to where they came from without any judicial process, likening them to invaders who are trying to "break into" the country. His proposal drew immediate criticism from legal analysts and immigrant rights advocates who said it would violate the U.S. Constitution's due process provision, which applies to citizens and non-citizens alike. In a series of tweets on Sunday, Trump said: "We cannot allow all of these people to invade our Country. When somebody comes in, we must immediately, with no Judges or Court Cases, bring them back from where they came.

"We cannot accept all of the people trying to break into our Country. Strong Borders, No Crime!" It was unclear if Trump was advocating for an expansion of the provision that allows expedited removals of illegal immigrants at or near the U.S. border, a policy his administration has embraced since he took office. Nor did Trump differentiate between illegal immigrants and people who entered the U.S. to seek asylum protection.

Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Atlantic City: Music, Music, Music

The long-awaited grand opening is this Thursday.

A.D. AMOROSI

When you attend Thursday's opening of Atlantic City's Hard Rock Hotel & Casino you can hit 2,100 slot machines and 120 gaming tables, dine at its 20 restaurants, or ogle "Creed II" star Michael B. Jordan on the red carpet.

Eventually, you'll find a sterling array of championship boxing matches, mixed martial arts matches, and theatrical productions in the Hard Rock's hot spots. But, mostly what this Hard Rock — built on the bones of the one-time Trump Taj Mahal — is all about nonstop music, a thoroughly curated array of sights (their museum-like dedication to memorabilia), and eclectic sounds (recorded, live) that smack you in the face from check-in to check-out.

If you're not busy seeing or listening, hotel habitués can take in Hard Rock's "Sound of Your Stay" program where guests check out Fender guitars or vinyl record turntables and a selection of albums. "From the 50 music zones throughout the property where we curate every single song and monitor their tone and volume, to our "365 Live" aspect of musicians playing somewhere — everywhere — when you walk into Hard Rock, it's an immersive experience," said Adam Zenegl, the hotel's locally-born "Vibe Manager."

Hard Rock International CEO Jim Allen and President of Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Atlantic City Matt Harkness — Jersey boys, both — are familiar with this city's reputation for being an entertainment mecca, long before casinos came to town in 1978.

From Skinny D'Amato's 500 Club where Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra packed the house, to Steel Pier concerts with The Beatles and Chuck Berry, AC has always been live and alive.

"Unlike casino companies known first for their gaming, we're known as a café, entertainment, hotel and casino company."

Matt Harkness

"Unlike casino companies known first for their gaming, we're known as a café, entertainment, hotel and casino company which attracts the gamers, of course, but mostly those consumers that aren't necessarily casino customers," said Harkness (as an example, their focus on NJ's new sports gambling allowance will come after they get open, up and running, as opposed to other gambling-focused facilities). "That's why we pursue incredible lineups of live, eclectic entertainment every day — from Pitbull to Il Divo," said Harkness. "We are music."

Throw a rock at Hard Rock and you're bound to hit a rocker — or musician taking part in the operation's live blues and jazz series, to say nothing of karaoke events and DJ parties. This is what assists Hard Rock in maintaining its edge without losing its family feel.

One glitch could've been the inclusion of Scores, which will operate one of its strip-clubs there, after a lawsuit by Hard Rock was dismissed in federal court (Scores was a leasee at the old Trump Taj). Turning lemons into lemonade, however, was Harkness, who stated, "We have many great tenants we look forward to working with."

Harkness is used to such diplomacy as he's been part of casino in Atlantic City from its 1978 start, with 15 of those years as the man behind the table games at Trump Taj Mahal. "I opened the Taj in 1990," he said. "This building not only had great bones, but its two towers — from hotel rooms to the way the arena's front opens onto the casino floor — was extraordinarily designed; a truly contemporary feel, even now."

Hard Rock purchased Trump Taj in March 2017 and needed TLC to the tune of $500 million. After that, Hard Rock's brain trust — guided by memorabilia master/historian Jeff Nolen — began the process of acquisition for the casino (e.g., Elvis Presley's gold Rolls Royce, Michael Jackson's white glove), along with putting its Vibe Managers through rigorous training. "We're looking to catapult this property to rock museum level," said Harkness.

From there, Vibe Manager Adam Zenegl (whose first concert as a kid was LeAnn Rimes in the Taj's arena) takes over with a job description that finds him interacting with every element of music. "The Sound of Your Stay' is me choosing albums and acquiring guitars. Every song within the 50 zones — restaurants, pool areas — I've curated. The non-ticketed "vibe stages" for our 365 live experience — a massive undertaking — is me bringing in everyone for "American Idol" winners to blues greats." Zengel even works to interconnect Hard Rock's international memorabilia with items specific to New Jersey artists such as Bon Jovi, Bruce Springsteen, Whitney Houston and totems from the Steel Pier. "That's Atlantic City, New Jersey history," said Zengel proudly. "This Hard Rock might be about the future of where this town is going, but we're not forgetting the past of where we come.

GRABBING THE GAMBLERS FAVORITES

When Hard Rock AC was putting together an aggressive live slate, two local legends had to be its most attractive "gets," whether they'll admit it or not. Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons have long been an area sensation, the original "Jersey Boys" whose allure comes from the wise guys and gamblers around at the Seasons' start.

Forever at the Borgata, Valli and the Four Seasons will now be a part of the Hard Rock's live schedule. "It's part of our eclectic make-up when it comes to demographics," said Harkness. "We want young audiences, and older casino regulars.

Then there is Valli's old pal, Philadelphia DJ legend Jerry Blavat, whose long association with the Golden Nugget AC ended in May, with Blavat starting a new gig at the Hard Rock on June 28.

"I opened up the Golden Nugget with a live broadcast from their Rush Lounge every Thursday during the summers, but I also worked for Jim Allen at the Seminole Hard Rock Casino in Hollywood, Florida with my Philly-Jersey reunion parties," said Blavat. "I have great respect for Jim and Bernie Dillon, two Jersey guys at Seminole, now focusing on AC. They wanted me to do more than what I do at Golden Nugget for the new Hard Rock — two live broadcasts a week and book shows the likes of which I do at the Kimmel Center, and my Malt Shop Memories Cruise." With Blavat's Golden Nugget contract up, The Geator is Hard Rock bound, starting June 28. "They're a brand. I am a brand, Together we combine the brands for some great music."

THE SCHEDULE

The initial schedule for Hard Rock's Etess Arena is out, and it's an dynamic, diverse host of shows, some of which are already sold out

June 29 – Carrie Underwood: From "American Idol" to country superstar, she makes an impressive opener in which to debut the new Etess.

June 30 – Pitbull: If you don't feel like wading through the crowds of Philly's Welcome America July 4 bash at Benjamin Franklin Parkway, the mainstream Latin hip-hop MC appears here first.

July 15 – Maroon 5: "The Voice" judge Adam Levine and his soul-pop band appeals to kids and adults alike.

Aug. 1 – Bush, The Cult & Stone Temple Pilots: Three of the '90s burliest, muskiest alternative rock acts join forces.

Aug.11 – Tropicaliente: Hector Acosta, Olga Tanon and some of the Latin music continuums finest acts ban together for fun and frolic.

Aug. 18 – Blake Shelton: Another judge from "The Voice," only this one's more focused on country music. I'm sensing a pattern.

Sept. 1 – Amy Schumer: Rude, crude comedian/actress Schumer appears on the big stage.

Sept. 28 - Christina Aguilera: Sure, she's the height of modern R&B. She also happens to be a judge on, you guessed it, "The Voice."

Five-year-old Xavier Moy was rushed to the hospital but died an hour later. FACEBOOK

Candlelight vigil held for 5-year-old hit-and-run victim

The Philly FOP have offered a $5,000 reward for information on the driver.

SARAH LUOMA
letters@metro.us

A candlelight vigil was held Saturday night for a 5-year-old boy who was struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver on Friday.

Xavier Moy was struck by a car in a hit-and-run in West Philadelphia. Moy was playing outside around 4 p.m. when he was hit by a car on the 5000 block of Irving Street in West Philadelphia. Moy was rushed to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia in critical condition where his parents and siblings met with him. He was pronounced dead an hour later.

Police said on Sunday that the vehicle involved in the hit-and-run was found and turned over to the 26th District police headquarters. No arrests had been made and the investigation was continuing.

The Philadelphia Fraternal Order of Police has also issued a $5,000 reward for any information that can lead them to the driver who struck and killed Xavier Moy.

On Saturday, though, family and friends held a vigil for the young boy.

"It's about him and a celebration of life," said Xavier's father Logan White. "It ain't right. It ain't right, man. All you got to do is care a little bit. If you care a little bit, that changes a lot."

Neighbors who heard Friday's incident came running, witnessing the young boy laying injured on the ground.

"I saw my neighbors doing CPR on him, I also saw them go and get T-shirts to try and stop the blood from coming out of his head."

Lashay Paine

"I heard the boom, and I just ran outside and seen the baby lying in the street," Terry Edwards reportedly said.

"I saw my neighbors doing CPR on him, I also saw them go and get t-shirts to try and stop the blood from coming out of his head," Lashay Paine said.

The posted speed limit is 25 miles per hour on the street where Xavier was struck and killed, but neighbors say many drivers don't obey the speed limit.

TRUMP'S AMERICA

TABLE FOR NONE: TAKE YOUR STINKIN' POLITICS SOMEPLACE ELSE!

Analysis

ELLIS HENICAN

Metro columnist Ellis Henican is the best-selling author of a dozen books. Join Ellis on Twitter @henican.

Your table isn't waiting. You and your kind aren't welcome here.

You don't have to love Sarah Huckabee Sanders, Donald Trump's truth-be-damned press secretary, to recognize the woman has a right to dine in whatever awful restaurant she chooses, so long as she has shoes on and can pay the overpriced bill. If not a legal right, at least a moral and historical one. This is America, after all. We can patronize even businesspeople who loathe us.

Not according to the owner of the Red Hen restaurant in Lexington, Virginia, who laid a big egg this time. Sanders and seven family members were tossed to the sidewalk just because her day job is dissembling for the president of the United States. I get the emotion, but I'm sorry: That's as narrow-minded as a cake baker in Colorado refusing to whip up a sugary wedding confection just because the groom and groom are gay.

Get a life, will you? Take the people's money! Be a business, what do you say?

There's a word for this overmoralizing — wrong! — whichever side is doing it now. Does every inch of our lives have to be defined by explicit tribal loyalties? Left and right! Black and white? Gay and straight! God, no God and which God. Whatever happened to just going to the store?

It was rude enough when the clueless homeland secretary, Kirstjen Nielsen, was greeted at Washington's MXDC Cocina Mexicana with chants of "shame, shame." The oily Stephen Miller, architect of Trump's "zero tolerance" immigration, was similarly heckled at a different Mexican restaurant in Washington. But at least these were fellow diners mouthing off, not the owners or the government.

I understand. These are private businesses. They have certain rights of their own. But back in the Southern civil-rights days, a better-grounded U.S. Supreme Court held that once a business offers "public accommodation," everyone has to be served, regardless of race, religion, color or college football team.

And now? Now, damn near everything demands a pledge of allegiance, even if we can't remember the meaning of our flag.

Why Haven't Senior Homeowners Been Told These Facts?

Keep reading if you own a home in the U.S. and were born before 1955.

It's a well-known fact that for many senior citizens in the U.S. their home is their single biggest asset, often accounting for more than 50% of their total net worth.

Yet, according to new statistics from the mortgage industry, senior homeowners in the U.S. are now sitting on more than 6.1 trillion dollars of unused home equity.[1] With people now living longer than ever before and home prices back up again, ignoring this "hidden wealth" may prove to be short sighted.

All things considered, it's not surprising that more than a million homeowners have already used a government-insured Home Equity Conversion Mortgage or "HECM" loan to turn their home equity into extra cash for retirement.

However, today, there are still millions of eligible homeowners who could benefit from this FHA-insured loan but may simply not be aware of this "retirement secret."

Some homeowners think HECM loans sound "too good to be true." After all, you get the cash you need out of your home but you have no more monthly mortgage payments.

NO MONTHLY MORTGAGE PAYMENTS?[2] EXTRA CASH?

It's a fact: no monthly mortgage payments are required with a government-insured HECM loan;[2] however the homeowners are still responsible for paying for the maintenance of their home, property taxes, homeowner's insurance and, if required, their HOA fees.

Another fact many are not aware of is that HECM reverse mortgages first took hold when President Reagan signed the FHA Reverse Mortgage Bill into law 29 years ago in order to help senior citizens remain in their homes.

Today, HECM loans are simply an effective way for homeowners 62 and older to get the extra cash they need to enjoy retirement.

Although today's HECM loans have been improved to provide even greater financial protection for homeowners, there are still many misconceptions.

For example, a lot of people mistakenly believe the home must be paid off in full in order to qualify for a HECM loan, which is not the case. In fact, one key advantage of a HECM is that the proceeds will first be used to pay off any existing liens on the property, which frees up cash flow, a huge blessing for seniors living on a fixed income. Unfortunately, many senior homeowners who might be better off with HECM loan don't even bother to get more information because of rumors they've heard.

That's a shame because HECM loans are helping many senior homeowners live a better life.

In fact, a recent survey by American Advisors Group (AAG), the nation's number one HECM lender, found that over 90% of their clients are satisfied with their loans.

While these special loans are not for everyone, they can be a real lifesaver for senior homeowners.

FACT: In 1988, President Reagan signed an FHA bill that put HECM loans into law.

The cash from a HECM loan can be used for any purpose. Many people use the money to save on interest charges by paying off credit cards or other high-interest loans. Other common uses include making home improvements, paying off medical bills or helping other family members. Some people simply need the extra cash for everyday expenses while others are now using it as a "safety net" for financial emergencies.

If you're a homeowner age 62 or older, you owe it to yourself to learn more so that you can make an informed decision. Homeowners who are interested in learning more can request a free 2018 HECM loan Information Kit and free Educational DVD by calling American Advisors Group toll-free at 1-800-791-1598.

At no cost or obligation, the professionals at AAG can help you find out if you qualify and also answer common questions such as:

1. What's the government's role?
2. How much money might I get?
3. Who owns the home after I take out a HECM loan?

You may be pleasantly surprised by what you discover when you call AAG for more information today.

[1]Source: http://reversemortgagedaily.com/2016/06/21/seniors-home-equity-grows-to-6-trillion-reverse-mortgage-opportunity. [2]If you qualify and your loan is approved, a Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) must pay off any existing mortgage(s). With a HECM loan, no monthly mortgage payment is required. A HECM increases the principal mortgage loan amount and decreases home equity (it is a negative amortization loan). AAG works with other lenders and financial institutions that offer HECMs. To process your request for a loan, AAG may forward your contact information to such lenders for your consideration of HECM programs that they offer. When the loan is due and payable, some or all of the equity in the property no longer belongs to borrowers, who may need to sell the home or otherwise repay the loan with interest from other proceeds. AAG charges an origination fee, mortgage insurance premium, closing costs and servicing fees (added to the balance of the loan). The balance of the loan grows over time and AAG charges interest on the balance. Interest is not tax-deductible until the loan is partially or fully repaid. Borrowers are responsible for paying property taxes and homeowner's insurance (which may be substantial). We do not establish an escrow account for disbursements of these payments. A set-aside account can be set up to pay taxes and insurance and may be required in some cases. Borrowers must occupy home as their primary residence and pay for ongoing maintenance; otherwise the loan becomes due and payable. The loan also becomes due and payable when the last borrower, or eligible non-borrowing surviving spouse, dies, sells the home, permanently moves out, defaults on taxes or insurance payments, or does not otherwise comply with the loan terms. American Advisors Group (AAG) is headquartered at 3800 W. Chapman Ave., 3rd & 7th Floors, Orange CA, 92868. (Licensed by the Pennsylvania Department of Banking 28356),. V2017.08.23_OR

THE FOREMAN FORECAST: DANGER ON THE BORDER

ANALYSIS

TOM FOREMAN

CNN's Tom Foreman is the author of the book "My Year of Running Dangerously."

All tortoises are turtles but only some turtles are tortoises. You've probably encountered this aphorism and if you are even passingly familiar with reptiles and the order of Testudines you understand what it means. Tortoises are generally turtles that live on dry land while turtles that live mainly in water are just — well, turtles.

I mention this because of President Trump's latest diatribe on immigrants and border security. Just this week he Tweeted, "Democrats are the problem. They don't care about crime and want illegal immigrants, no matter how bad they may be, to pour into and infest our country, like MS-13."

As a 10-pound turtle might say poking out of his shell, "Oof! There is a lot to unpack here!"

First, I've met plenty of Democrats over a lifetime of reporting. Some are very strong on fighting crime and harsh punishment, some less so, but I've never met one who wanted criminals to "infest" America … let alone a brutally violent syndicate like MS-13.

More troubling than Trump's exact words, however, is his implication that anyone entering the country illegally is an inherent threat to the rest of us because A) if he or she is brazen enough to flaunt the law and come skipping across the border then B) he or she is likely to be a violent criminal.

Really? There is nothing to back this up. No creditable data. No provable trends.

Certainly, some people in this country illegally have committed heinous crimes, and it is tragic, maddening, and frustrating. But researchers have found the rate of violent crime for these immigrants is not significantly different than for native-born Americans, and to suggest immigrants — as a group — are somehow intrinsically more violent is misleading.

GETTY IMAGES

Argue that you don't want them, that they strain resources or take entry level jobs. All of those are at least debatable points but crossing the border without documents, while it is a civil violation under our law, is not a criminal offense. In other words, while some violent criminals are immigrants, not all immigrants — not even close — are violent criminals. And that makes a world of difference.

Trump adviser Kushner criticizes Abbas, says US peace plan near Jared Kushner, President Donald Trump's senior adviser, said Washington would announce its Middle East peace plan soon, and press on with or without Palestinian president Mahmoud Abbas.

The comments underlined gaping divisions between Washington and the Palestinian leadership that have widened since Trump recognized Jerusalem as Israel's capital in December and moved the U.S. Embassy there, overriding decades of U.S. policy.

Palestinian officials, who want East Jerusalem as the capital of a future state, accused Kushner of trying to undermine Abbas and what they described as their leader's moderate camp.

Kushner — Trump's son-in-law who is meeting leaders in the region, but not Abbas — told Palestinian newspaper Al Quds in an interview published in Arabic on Sunday, that he doubted whether the Palestinian president was willing or able to seal a deal.

"If President Abbas is willing to come back to the table, we are ready to engage; if he is not, we will likely air the plan publicly," Kushner said, according to an English transcript of his words provided by Washington.

"However, I do question how much President Abbas has the ability to, or is willing to, lean into finishing a deal. He has his talking points which have not changed in the last 25 years."

Kushner appealed directly to the Palestinian people and portrayed Abbas, 82, as a leader entrenched in the past.

"There have been countless mistakes and missed opportunities over the years, and you, the Palestinian people, have paid the price," said Kushner, who is on the trip with U.S. envoy Jason Greenblatt. "Don't let your leadership reject a plan they haven't even seen," he added.

Abbas has refused to meet with Trump's team since the embassy decision, accusing Washington of pro-Israel bias.

"This [U.S.] administration is really trying to destroy the Palestinian moderate camp. They want to throw us into chaos and anarchy," said Saeb Erekat, the Palestinians' chief negotiator.

US says it's still working to reunite 2,053 children with families

So far, 522 children who were in custody have been reunited with their parents.

The U.S. government still has 2,053 children in its custody who were separated from their parents under President Donald Trump's "zero tolerance" immigration policy and officials said there was a "well coordinated" process for reuniting families.

The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) issued a fact sheet late on Saturday after criticism from lawyers for parents and children who say there is little evidence of an organized system.

A total of 522 children in the custody of U.S. border officials have already been reunited with parents, according to the DHS fact sheet, published three days after Trump ended the U.S.-Mexico border family separation policy.

The president's shift occurred following images of children in cages triggered outrage. On Sunday, Trump renewed his hardline on immigration calling for people who enter the U.S. illegally to return to where they came from immediately without any judicial process.

An administration official reported Sunday that reunions occurred because parents returned from court proceedings quickly enough that they had not yet been transferred to Department of Health and Human Services custody where more than 2,000 remain separated from their parents are warehoused.

A total of 522 children in the custody of U.S. border officials have already been reunited with parents.

"The U.S. government knows the location of all children in its custody and is working to reunite them with their families," the DHS fact sheet said.

The new details came after more than two months of confusion around how detained migrant parents, who are shuttled from facility to facility run by different government agencies, would ever reunite with their children, who are sent to shelters and foster homes scattered across the country.

GETTY IMAGES

The DHS said the Trump administration has a process for how parents would be reunited with their children "for the purposes of removal" or deportation.

Deportation proceedings could take months to complete, and the fact sheet did not say whether parents and children would be reunited in the intervening time.

The Port Isabel detention center in Texas will serve as "the primary family reunification and removal center" for adults in ICE custody, the statement said.

Many of the parents are planning to claim asylum, lawyers and advocates who have spoken with them said. The fact sheet did not say how reunifications would be handled in those cases.

The fact sheet said children are given the chance to speak with a "vetted parent, guardian or relative" within 24 hours of arriving at a facility run by Department of Health and Human Services.

Sirine Shebaya, a senior staff attorney with Muslim Advocates, said she and two other lawyers met about 70 detained Central American migrants at Port Isabel on Friday and Saturday. All but one had been separated from their children, she added in an interview before the fact sheet was published.

The Department of Homeland Security fact sheet

Several of the migrants had been given a number to call to try to locate their children, but found their calls would not go through or no one picked up, she said. If they did manage to get someone on the line, they were often told they would get a call back — useless to them while in a detention center.

"When they do get a phone call, it's a one- to two-minute phone call and the kids frequently don't know where they are," she said. "Some kids know, 'OK I'm in Michigan,' but they don't know any more than that."

STAY OFF OF YOUR PHONE WHILE DRIVING!!!
We have become a society of drones addicted to the nonsense of social media and other mind-bending platforms designed to suck your minds and pockets! We become so entrapped that even when we drive our attention is diverted by the slightest ding, bing or buzz! I've witnessed time and time again people driving and staring at their smart device which by the way seems to have more brains then those who don't see the inconsiderate behavior and danger you present to those responsible drivers. The driver's seat is not your kitchen, living room, deck or any other place where you can indulge your favorite pastime in a secure and private space. Studies have shown that distracted driving is as dangerous as drinking and driving, and we all know the results of those who indulge in this dangerous behavior. If you find your addiction to your phone is too overwhelming here's some advice before you get in your car: Put it in the TRUNK!

Keep your eyes on the road! ISTOCK

PLEASE ... USE YOUR HEADPHONES ON PUBLIC TRANSIT!
It really grinds my gears when someone decides to turn on Pandora, YouTube, etc. on any type of public transportation and they don't have any headphones. Yes, I am a fan of all types of music, but when it's 6 a.m. and I am barely awake or its after 5 p.m. and I had a long day at the office, the last thing I wanna hear is the latest rap song that has no damn meaning. Yes I understand that it's PUBLIC transportation, but have a little consideration for others. If you're gonna play it out loud, the least you can is turn it down a notch or three!!!

Aries Take care of personal business and update your look or personal style. A physical challenge needs to be addressed cautiously.

Taurus Getting along with your peers, friends or relatives will help you round up the help you need to get things done. Learn from those with more life experience.

Gemini Keep an eye on your personal finances, pending settlements or any health issues you face. Taking action quickly will help you turn a potential loss into a gain.

Cancer If you take a different route, you'll discover something you did not know existed. Don't hesitate to stop and investigate what you find. Life is full of surprises. Live in the moment.

Leo Take action, get involved and do your part. Don't let someone else's change of plans stop you from following through and keeping promises you made to one of your peers or children.

Virgo Take a moment to figure out the best way to respond to someone using emotional tactics to persuade you to do something. A practical suggestion will help alleviate persistent pressure.

Libra Don't let laziness cost you. If you let someone down, it will be difficult to regain the trust required to build a good relationship. Do your part and more.

Scorpio Size up what's going on with the people you deal with daily. Listen and respond carefully to avoid a misunderstanding. Tense dynamics between you and a peer can be expected.

Sagittarius Express your feelings overtly. Taking action and doing something nice for someone you love will affect how you get along. A new look will draw compliments.

Capricorn Only offer to do so much if someone asks for help. Make sure your motives are honorable. Changing how you live or handle domestic affairs will help save time and money.

Aquarius Don't let emotional situations grow out of control. If you discuss your feelings, concerns and intentions, you'll avoid tension and added stress. Make love, not war to build stronger relationships.

Pisces If you take a creative approach, you'll gain popularity, interest and support to help you complete your pursuit. New friendships will unfold.

Here's what we know about Sandler's on 9th

The restaurant is now open at 9th and Chestnut.

JENNIFER LOGUE
jennifer.logue@metro.us

Sandler's on 9th is about to shake up your restaurant routine at 9th and Chestnut streets in Center City.

The brainchild of owner, Paul "Paulie" Sandler, it will be open for breakfast, lunch and dinner, serving American comfort cuisine.

"This is a location that's 40 years in the making for me. I've been in the business for a long time," says Sandler. "What I'm trying to create here is a restaurant that has all the pieces that I've seen work while, eliminating pieces that don't work."

Sandler took a lot of time to figure out what this stretch of Center City needed, and in addition to acquiring the restaurant (which was formerly Rarest), he also took over the hotel lobby bar at The Franklin, which opens into the restaurant.

Paul Sandler is the owner of Sandler's on 9th. ALL PHOTOS PROVIDED

"I tried to create a quieter space with the lobby bar," Sandler says. "The lobby bar is date night, and inside the restaurant is 'Cheers.'"

Sandler spent the last 15 years working at the Palm, primarily the Atlantic City location, which he helped open. But don't expect steakhouse prices at Sandler's on 9th.

"I learned a lot there, but I didn't want to go back to that genre," Sandler says. "I wanted to offer convenience and comfort. Nothing on our menu so far has been over $29 — even our filet is $29."

Sandler recruited Rob Schoell as executive chef and menu items so far will please health nuts and the most indulgent of foodies alike.

Breakfast options include everything from avocado toast to omelettes and Benedicts to salted-caramel French toast to breakfast sandwiches like the 'Train Wreck' — which is comprised of a Taylor pork roll, egg, American cheese and long hots on a Sarcone's kaiser roll, in case you're wondering.

Parppardelle with grilled shrimp

The all-day menu features bison burgers as well as veggie burgers, poutines, salads, housemade pasta, steak and healthier seafood dishes. There's also a kid's menu.

And in terms of coffee, there won't be any La Colombe. Sandler's on 9th will be serving W.B. Law & Sons, a company that's popular in the New York and New Jersey area.

"I believe I'm the first in the Philly area to carry the product," Sandler says. It was a recommendation from my cousin. I did some research and they're fourth-generation, family-owned. They have the same philosophy that I do — keep it in the family and keep it small."

He adds, "I'm not looking to create a brand that's 45-restaurants large. We're trying to do what we do, do it well and keep it small."

Sandler's on 9th opens to the public today for breakfast and lunch.

CNN comedian W. Kamau Bell comes to Netflix

The "United Shades of America" star brings his comedy hot takes to the streaming service.

ANDREW HUSBAND

Best known to CNN's audiences as the host of its Emmy Award-winning program "United Shades of America," W. Kamau Bell is about to join the ever-expanding group of comedians who have released a special on Netflix.

On Tuesday, Bell's follow-up to his 2016 Showtime special, "Semi-Prominent Negro," will drop on the streaming platform. Titled "Private School Negro," the new hour features the comic's takes on the racism within (and encouraged by) President Donald Trump's administration and living in Berkeley during the 2016 presidential election.

Seeing as how Bell doesn't want to overload the audience with chiefly political material, he also devotes some time to parenting and the Disney animated series "Doc McStuffins." You know, because both go hand-in-hand with topics like Trump and Attorney General Jeff Sessions' problematic past in Alabama.

Sarcasm notwithstanding, these various topics actually do possess multiple common threads, and Bell expertly manages to tie them all together into an hour of comedy that is as enlightening as it is funny.

"I've got two daughters. They can tell that the country is in a hectic place," he tells the crowd. "One time I was watching the news, and she came into the room and goes, 'Are they still trying to figure out why Donald Trump is the president?' You just synthesized an hour of CNN into one question!"

Of course, political comedy isn't for everybody, especially when the everyday politics currently engulfing American popular culture can seem like too much. Bell recognizes this too, frequently joking about the surprise and shock his material may cause some viewers. Even so, as the comedian notes in "Private School Negro," avoiding these topics out of distaste, indifference or both is no longer a luxury we can afford.

"W. Kamau Bell: Private School Negro" streams Tuesday, June 26, on Netflix.

Derren Brown is worried he's a faith-healer

Derren Brown
ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

He was just meant to parody them in Netflix's "Miracle."

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

For over the last decade Derren Brown has astonished and wowed British audiences with his unique blend of illusion, mind-trickery and good old fashioned magic.

Last year, Brown even brought his show over to New York, where he mystified and bamboozled audiences with his efforts. That was more than enough to persuade Netflix to invest in Brown, and "Miracle" is his second special,; his first, "The Push," was released in February.

"Miracle" sees Brown exploring and exposing the phenomenon of faith healers, as he cures the sick, removes crippling pains, and even restores eyesight. But Brown recently told Metro that while he was meant to parody faith-healers, he's not actually sure if he just became one instead.

How do you label yourself?
I don't, really. For years I had to give it some label. So I said psychological illusionist. But that doesn't really mean anything. That just begs further questions. I started off as a hypnotist. And then a magician. But then grew out of that. As my career took off I tried to take more grown-up roots to take those, because magic is quite a childish urge. And it has taken me in all sorts of directions. And it is quite difficult to define it. But that kind of works for me, too. I like that.

"I had to reframe it in a way that was not adversely religious, but like I was able to take something from that world and had found something useful."

What did you want to explore with "Miracle"?
Well, "Miracle" was my seventh stage show that I have done in the U.K. Not quite my current one, but was the previous one. There are some things in the world of magic and suggestion and persuasion and mind reading, the same skills get used by charlatans in various forms. So "Miracle," a large part of it is faith-healing. Re-creating the evangelical faith healing, and debunking it. I am doing it ironically. But doing it none the less.

On the one hand it is a debunking and a re-creation of that, but at an other level the show is really about the stories that we tell ourselves and live by. What was amazing doing the show every night was seeing how the stories that we live out affect us in terms of these sort of conditions and illnesses that we live with, and what a difference it makes when these stories are interrupted and made to change. Which is why these performers create the sort of effects that they do. Sometimes it is obviously just trickery, and it is transparent, but sometimes it is extraordinary experiences. And it was amazing to see that from night to night.

This was an entirely skeptical audience, completely wrongly placed, and I am asking them to suspend their disbelief. And all of those things that I thought wouldn't really make it work but would hopefully make it work well enough that I could massage it into a show. It was fascinating how little it took; it took me just saying, "Go along with this." And reframing it, I had to reframe it in a way that was not adversely religious, but like I was able to take something from that world and had found something useful. And if you do this, and go along with it, you'll find it useful. It doesn't take much to reframe something. And then I was just treading a fine line between a parody of that world and actually doing it.

Artists & Trends on Instagram

The way of seeing beauty evolves very quickly on these social networks where brands no longer dictate what's in and out. These are the most striking trends and creators that change fashion, combine various techniques and aesthetics and show their work online, defying the established standards of beauty. Here's why they are all so coveted.

He is known for making masks for Björk's videos and concerts. He has also collaborated with Nike, using human and animal morphology to create incredible embroidered pieces in which he explores the biological anatomy and aesthetic combinations that are created from cultural concepts. He has worked with artist Damien Hirst in the past and one could say that he is Leigh Bowery's successor when speaking of concept.

More than designers, these artists display their own body and morphology. Hannah Rose Dalton and Steven Raj Bhaskaran, of Montreal, created a new concept through prostheses, shoes and structures (which they also sell online) in which they show another vision of beauty without gender and without traditionally established "human" reference. They themselves have documented the reactions generated by this type of performance in their own physiognomies in various cities around the world and with this they want to establish their critical position in the face of prevailing standards.

They confer with Fecal Matter but also explore their corporality in more diverse ways. This stream has gained followers on Instagram and showcases those combining various morphologies to create another concept of the human body. They add parts, make body painting and create new silhouettes and morphologies in the process. One of their great exponents includes make-up artistry.

Sixers draft quite underwhelming

It's quite early, but so far it has been a weak offseason for the 76ers.

ANDY JASNER
sports@metro.us

Zhaire Smith during his time at Texas Tech. GETTY IMAGES

Zhaire Smith, Landry Shamet, and Shake Milton.

Not much to get excited about.

The Philadelphia 76ers completed their 2018 draft last Thursday by wheeling and dealing and ultimately selecting three players. But when it was over, the roster wasn't a whole lot better.

Out of the three players, Shamet – taken at No. 26 from Wichita State – may be able to contribute immediately with his ability to score.

The Sixers could have had Villanova's Mikal Bridges at No. 10. Actually, they did draft him and later traded him to the Phoenix Suns for the rights to Smith at No. 16 and an unprotected first-round draft pick in 2021 from the Miami Heat via the Suns.

Much of the Sixers' fan base on social media went from euphoric to shocked once the deal was completed.

The draft was just the first step this offseason in improving this franchise. They did not get a whole lot better with these three players. Certainly not good enough to now beat the Boston Celtics in the NBA playoffs.

However, bigger deals could be on the horizon. They could sign LeBron James or Paul George. They could acquire Kawhi Leonard.

For now, the roster features three new players. None of them are as talented as Bridges.

"There's a human side to this that is kind of really hard to explain," said Sixers head coach Brett Brown, who is also serving on an interim basis as the general manager. "And we all, I'm assuming, go from this level of excitement and coincidence, you can't make this up, to something as a group, we sit there and we feel off this and again one we knocked back, it was a great opportunity, really a great opportunity and then there it is."

Brown fully understood the ramifications after seeing Bridges complete a series of interviews with the Philadelphia media about playing for his hometown team only to push through with the trade to the Suns.

It happened and it was a bad look. The franchise is still suffering from the dismissal of Bryan Colangelo for being linked to numerous Twitter "burner" accounts. Now comes this image of losing Bridges.

"That could be the thing that flips it with us having more assets to enhance a realistic trade for a star. We are star hunting or we are star developing that's how you win a championship and the emotion of what we have all been through is painful," Brown said. "But as I said at the start, what's best for the organization and how do you win a championship and since I've looked at you all I haven't pivoted out of that once."

This all sounds a bit silly. It has been five years since Brown arrived in Philadelphia. The team is finally trending in the right way. Waiting three or four more seasons is not necessary. The time to win is now.

Zhaire Smith averaged 11.3 points per game last season at Texas Tech.

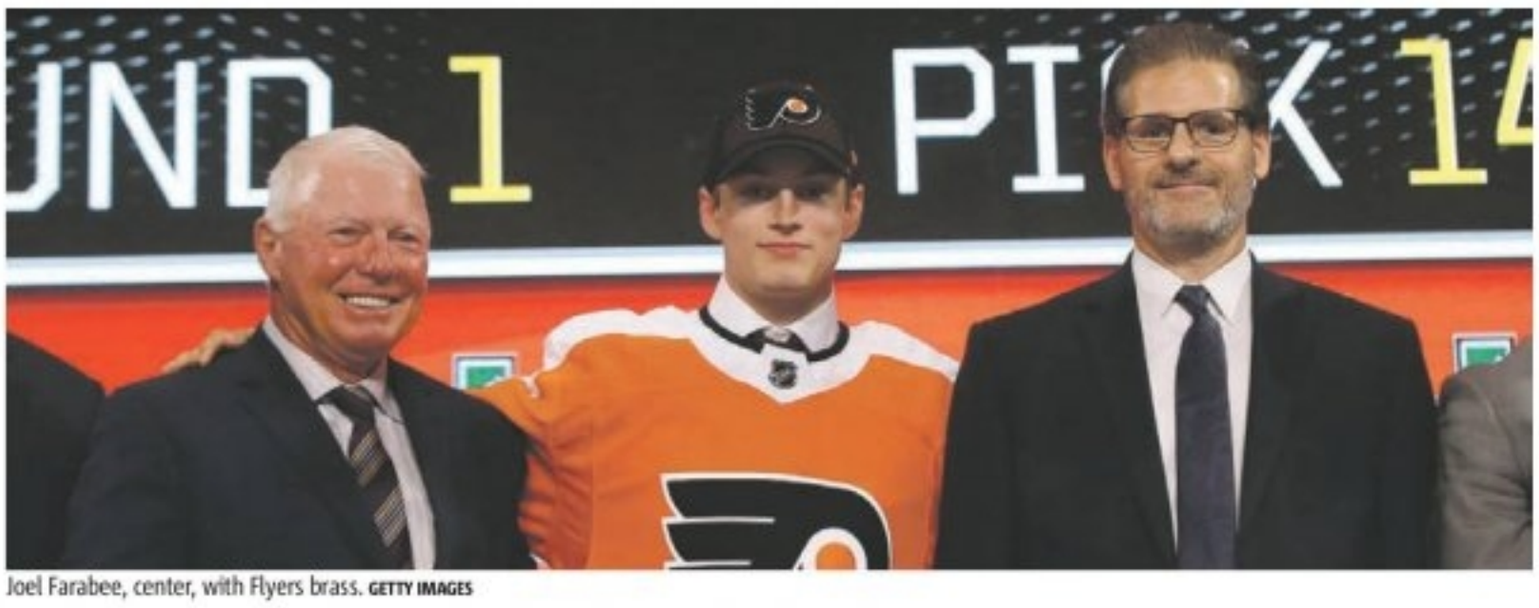
Go make every inquiry possible to get Leonard, James or George. Build on the momentum of a 52-win season and a playoff series win. It also not of the realm of possibility that Joel Embiid's body may not hold up for 10 years.

Let's see what transpires the rest of the summer. As of now, the Sixers don't seem to be much improved.

Flyers draft roundup

Philly was once again forward focused in the 2018 NHL draft.

ERIC GOLDSTEIN
sports@metro.us



Joel Farabee, center, with Flyers brass. GETTY IMAGES

When each of the eight players was selected by the Philadelphia Flyers on Friday and Saturday at the 2018 NHL Draft, general manager Ron Hextall likely congratulated and welcomed the 18-year-olds to the organization either in person or over the phone.

However, he probably won't talk to them again for three-to-five years – if at all.

Every player taken will head to college or their respective junior league teams to begin the long journey to fulfill their dream of playing in the National Hockey League.

A couple of lucky players will achieve their childhood goal and even have successful careers. However, most will fall short. The benchmark is to have three players from a draft class per team reach the NHL.

Regardless, let's take a quick look at who the Flyers drafted this weekend:

Round 1

For the second straight year, the Flyers used both of their first-round picks on forwards and have taken a forward in the first round each of the last four drafts. They chose left winger Joel Farabee with the No. 14 pick, obtained from the Blues last year in the Brayden Schenn trade, and five picks later pulled off a bit of a stunner by grabbing center Jay O'Brien.

Despite their high draft status, don't expect to see Farabee or O'Brien in Philadelphia for a minimum of three or four years.

Farabee (6-0, 164) captained the U.S. National U-18 team and will play for Boston University this fall. Considered an excellent two-way player, he has above-average speed and skating ability as well as a deft scoring touch with 31 goals in 58 games with the U.S. National Team Development Program.

"He's a real attention to detail player," Hextall told reporters. "He competes hard, he's got speed, he's got skill, and he can score."

While Farabee was expected to go in the middle of the first round, NHL Central Scouting ranked O'Brien 32nd. The Flyers were impressed enough with his potential, though. O'Brien (5-11, 176), who is headed to Providence College, scored 43 goals and had 37 assists in 30 games at Thayer Academy, and was named All-USA Boys Hockey Player of the Year.

"He's a really smart player, really good hockey sense," Hextall said. "He's competitive, he's strong, and he's got a little agitator in him. He's got a really good shot and sees the ice well."

Rounds 2-7

The Flyers added six players on the second day of the draft. They took defensemen with their next three picks and then a goalie, before rounding out the event with two more forwards.

The two players from Day 2 who have the best chance of becoming Flyers are blueliners Adam Ginning (6-4, 206) and John St. Ivany (6-2, 198).

Selected with the 50th overall pick in the second round, Ginning is a hulking stay-at-home defenseman who served as the captain for Team Sweden at the 2018 U-18 World Junior Championship, while St. Ivany, taken with the 112th overall pick in the fourth round, has a coveted right-handed shot.

England is through to the last 16 of the World Cup after a convincing and dominating performance against debutant Panama.

Tottenham man Harry Kane recorded a hat trick while defender John Stones, who had a horrendous miss against Tunisia, netted two of his own.

It is the most goals England has ever scored at a World Cup match.

There was history for Panama though as Felipe Baloy scored the first goal for his country ever at the World Cup.

JAPAN, SENEGAL SPLIT POINTS

The unlikely leaders of Group H battled to a 2-2 draw as Senegal and Japan temporarily remained at the top of the fouresome that also includes Poland and Colombia.

Senegal would take a pair of leads through Liverpool star Sadio Mane and 19-year-old Moussa Wague only for Japan to punch back both times via Takashi Inui and veteran midfielder Keisuke Honda.

COLOMBIA ELIMINATES POLAND

The eighth-ranked team in the world has been eliminated from the World Cup after two matches as Poland lost its second-straight on Sunday, a 2-0 result to Colombia.

Seldom-used Barcelona defender Yanny Mina opened the scoring for Los Cafeteros before 32-year-old Radamel Falcao, playing the best soccer of his career, recorded his first-ever World Cup goal.

You are hereby notified that a hearing to consider the termination of all parental rights to K.C. will be held on August 23, 2018 at 8:30 o'clock A.M., at the Superior Court of Vermont, Washington Family Division, 255 Main Street, Barre, Vermont. You are notified to appear in connection with this case. Failure to appear at this hearing will result in the termination of any rights you may have to K.C. The State is represented by the Attorney General's Office, HC 2 North, 280 State Drive, Waterbury, Vermont 05671-2080. Other parties are Jayveon Caballero and K.C.

The State of Vermont has petitioned the Superior Court to terminate any rights you might have to K.C. so that she can be freed for adoption. K.C. has been a ward of the State of Vermont since 2016. The State has alleged that there is no likelihood that you will be able to assume any parental duties for K.C. within a reasonable period of time and that K.C.'s best interests would be served by termination of your parental rights and allowing for her adoption. The State will present its evidence on these issues at the hearing on August 23, 2018.

Dated at Barre, Vermont this 11th day of June, 2018.

John Valente
Family Division Judge

We're taking a different approach to depression.

If you've tried depression medications and they haven't worked very well, you're not alone. We're developing an investigational drug designed to work along with your antidepressants to see if it can help address unresolved symptoms. Please consider joining this investigational study. As long as you're 18 years of age or older, you may be eligible to participate whether or not you are currently taking an antidepressant.

TO LEARN IF YOU QUALIFY, CONTACT:
Hassman Research Institute 1-866-230-4185

All eligible study participants may receive at no cost:

- CONSULTATION WITH STUDY DOCTOR
- STUDY DRUGS
- STUDY-RELATED CARE AND VISITS

Do you have bipolar disorder?

Are you currently experiencing depression?

If so, please contact HRI Trials today about research studies of investigational medications for bipolar depression.

Qualified participants must:

• Be at least 18 years of age • Currently experience symptoms of Bipolar disorder

Qualified participants receive:

• All study-related evaluations and study medication at no cost
• Compensation up to $600.00 for time and travel
